

A collaborative recovery housing model that leads to independence.

Delivering safety, stability, and economic independence.

COMMUNITY IN RECOVERY.

INDEPENDENCE IN LIFE.

Sunstone Life operates at the intersection of housing, treatment, and community integration:

- A recovery systems architect
- A data-driven housing operator
- A smart public-private partner

PART 1:

The Problem Sunstone Solves.

Relapse and long-term dependency are more often the result of fragmented systems—not individual failure.

Too often, individuals are blamed when recovery doesn't last.

In reality, relapse and long-term dependency are most often the result of disconnected systems; treatment, housing, criminal justice, and social services operating in silos rather than in coordination.

When these systems fail to align around employment, housing stability, and daily life needs, recovery can stall. Instead of building independence, individuals are left navigating gaps that lead to instability and long-term reliance.

This is the problem Sunstone was built to solve.

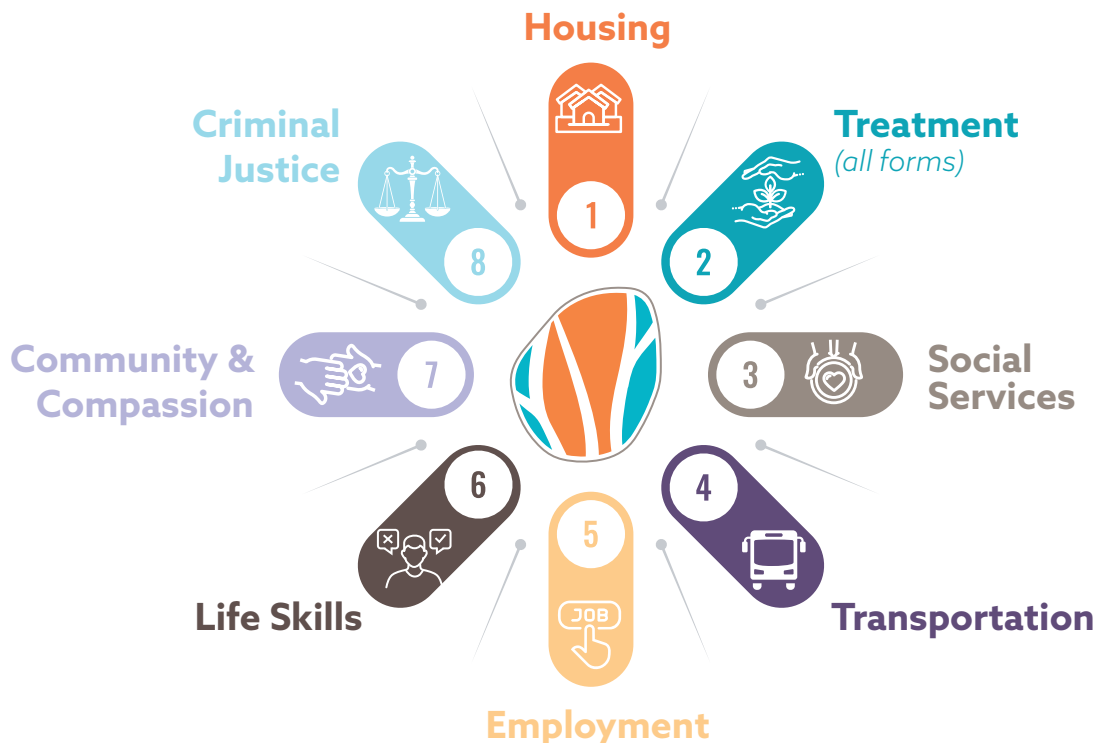

PART 2:

The Sunstone Model.

An integrated recovery housing model designed for real-world success.

Sunstone functions as the central hub in a resident's recovery ecosystem—the place where people live, stabilize, and build forward momentum.
